I agree to:

-try my best and give generously of myself.

-be honest and respectful (of my peers, camp staff, and myself).

-participate enthusiastically in all parts of the program; I realize that it is important to try new things at camp.

-recognize that everyone (including non-camp family) has a right to feel emotionally and physically safe, but that discomfort is an important part of growth.

-make my best effort in understanding and working with others (fellow campers and staff).

-respect and listen to others' opinions.

-abide by all safety policies and never endanger myself or another.

-fully participate in camp clean-up; if there are any issues, such as cleanliness concerns or anything broken, either fix it (if possible) or promptly notify staff.

-care for camp family, friends, and self by speaking up about detrimental behavior by fellow campers or staff members.

-ask a counselor or adult staff member for help should I have any problems; I will empower myself to speak up and be honest about what I need.

-discuss any issues or discomfort while at camp (rather than waiting until at home); this is my chance to positively impact my community.

I have read and understand the expectations outlined above and accept personal responsibility for meeting them. I understand that I play a very important part in the success of this program. I am excited to participate and give my best effort!
